your mind
to your future retirement...

at 50

For Scheme members at age 50

Did you know that you may be able to choose when you take your pension? You don't even have to stop working. You also have some choices about how you take it.

It's time to think ahead.

Read on to find out more...

Here are some questions to get you started.

They'll help you prepare for the future you have in mind.

1 | When would you like to retire?

You don't need to worry about retiring and taking your benefits – if you don't do anything, we will contact you when your benefits are "normally" due. If you do nothing, when you get close to your normal retirement date (usually age 65) our pension administrators at Gallagher will contact you automatically.

You can, however, retire earlier than this, generally from age 55 (increasing to 57 from 2028). Just remember that if you choose to retire earlier than 65, your pension would normally be reduced to reflect the fact that it's likely to be paid for longer.

You don't have to give up work either

If you're still working at Raytheon, you may be able to start taking your pension after age 55 and reduce your working hours.

If you no longer work at Raytheon, you can also consider taking your pension benefits from age 55 if it fits your financial plans.

2 | What type of lifestyle would you like to have in retirement?

Pensions UK has published a report on living costs to help you understand how much you're likely to need in retirement.

The amount you'll need is different depending on the type of lifestyle you'd like when you retire.

If you're single and enjoy a two-week holiday in Europe and a fairly active social life, then you'd need less than if you're looking for a retirement that involves flying off to more far-flung destinations.

The living standards change each year. You can find out more about the retirement living standards and work out what your own lifestyle in retirement may cost at: www.retirementlivingstandards.org.uk.

Think about how much you'll need and when

Although these examples give some idea of what you might need to live on, you'll have your own ideas about what makes a reasonable standard of living in retirement.

So, think about what you spend now and work out what will cost less in retirement and what might cost more once you've got more free time.

It may be useful to consider whether you think you'll need more money straight away, or if you would prefer a reasonably fixed amount throughout your retirement.

If you're not sure where to start, try using an online modeller like the one at MoneyHelper - go to www.moneyhelper.org.uk and search for 'pension calculator'.

3 How much are you going to get from the Scheme?

If you left the Scheme, you would have been sent a deferred statement. If you were still paying into the Scheme up to 31 August 2023, when it was closed to active members, you would have been sent a closing statement.

This gives you more information about your expected pension and shows you the value of your pension at the date of leaving.

This will be revalued when you come to take your benefits.

You can also simply log in to My pension portal, accessed through www.raytheonpensions.co.uk. You can then check this against the kind of lifestyle you're planning to have in retirement

Remember any other sources of income too

This may include other workplace pensions you may have – if you've lost touch with them, you can track them down at www.gov.uk/find-pension-contact-details.

Don't forget your State Pension too – you can get a forecast of how much you might get from www.gov.uk/check-state-pension.

Plus consider any other savings and investments you have.

Your checklist...

Give some thought to when you want to retire, whether that's on a specific date or reducing your working hours over time.

Use the tools available to work out how much your lifestyle will cost you.

Consider the options available at retirement to help you start deciding how to take your money.

Consider financial advice

Before making a decision about how to take your pension it's worthwhile talking to an independent financial adviser who can look at your options with you, understand what you want from retirement, and put forward recommendations. You can find out more on our website www.raytheonpensions.co.uk/how-to-get-financial-advice.

Stay safe from scammers

Unfortunately, there continues to be an increase in people keen to swindle you out of your life savings – and scammers are particularly targeting people’s pension savings. To help you spot the signs and protect yourself from a scam, the Financial Conduct Authority and The Pensions Regulator suggest the following four steps:

1 Reject any unexpected offers

These often originate from unsolicited text or social media messages.

2 Check who you’re dealing with

The FCA’s website allows you to search for IFAs and companies authorised by the FCA: www.fca.org.uk/scamsmart/how-avoid-pension-scams. If you’re using online resources, always double-check the website address is the same as the address shown in any official communications.

3 Don’t feel pressured into making any quick decisions

If you’re contacted out of the blue by someone you don’t know offering you a “safe haven” for your pension, please don’t make any rushed decisions.

4 Get impartial financial advice before making any changes to your pension

Although you don’t have to take financial advice (unless you’re taking a transfer value of £30k or more), we’d always recommend it before making any changes to your pension as it’s a one-time decision that can’t be changed.
